

Coast Guard Transfers HC-130H Hercules Aircraft to NASA

The Coast Guard's transfer of an HC-130H Hercules to NASA on Dec. 10, 2014, is the latest step in the service's plans to replace its HC-130H fleet with new, mission-enabled HC-130J Super Hercules. NASA plans to use the aircraft for airborne scientific research activities and range surveillance. Photo courtesy of NASA.