The Coast Guard HC-27J Asset Project Office in Elizabeth City, North Carolina, received the service's seventh regenerated C-27J Spartan medium range surveillance aircraft June 17, 2016. Regeneration involves inspecting, verifying and repairing the aircraft before certifying it as airworthy and is completed by the 309th Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Group on Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson, Arizona. The Coast Guard will regenerate 13 aircraft under this program. The eighth began the regeneration process earlier this month. U.S. Coast Guard photo by Chief Petty Officer Bill Vallergera.
