Description

Graduate Academic Programs (GAP) foster employee development by using educational curricula at respected academic institutions across the country to cultivate creative homeland security strategic analysis and decision-making skills and preparing future leaders at the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). The essay is evaluated on the depth, breadth and level of experience, as well as activities and accomplishments of the applicant. Essay

The Self-assessment Essay is a statement specifying: (1) your reasons for seeking graduate education in homeland security; (2) the ways your background and experience flow logically toward such an endeavor; and (3) what you believe will be your future contributions to "homeland security." From this information, combining relevance, motivation, drive, and potential, your "Future Contributions" to the field of homeland security will be assessed.

When writing your essay, you may consider the following categories. While they do not represent "topics" to adopt for the essay, they may serve as examples of items or issues which could be incorporated in your essay:

- The contribution your background and educational experiences have made to your success in public safety, public administration, or homeland security.
- Your current position, opportunities, challenges, and successes in improving the quality of life of the citizens of your jurisdiction.
- The value of a graduate-level certificate program in homeland security to you and your organization, agency, jurisdiction, or state.
- Your assessment of your career path and the progression of your positions as well as the contributions you expect to make over the next five to ten years in the fields of public safety, public administration, or homeland security.
- What you consider to be the greatest challenges faced by your jurisdiction in the next decade and the ways you will be able to assist in meeting those challenges
- An example or several examples of the homeland security-related topics you consider most critical in your jurisdiction and your plans to study those topics within the graduate curriculum.

Essay is limited to 7000 characters (approximately 1,000 words). Attachments are not accepted.

As part of their application package, individuals must include a letter from their direct supervisor or Component leadership that indicates an understanding of how their participation in a program will benefit DHS; and how the knowledge gained through participation will be implemented upon their return to duty. The letter should address the following questions:

1. How does this opportunity link to the applicant's career growth within the Department of Homeland Security?
2. How will your organization benefit from the knowledge the applicant will gain as part of this opportunity?
